CREEPING WORDS FROM BRYAN.

William Jennings Bryan, who though defeated by a few thousand votes in a few States, whose electoral votes would have given him the Presidency, towers above Hanna, as a giant above a pigmy, says no personal or political friend need grieve because of his defeat. His ambition has been to secure immediate legislation rather than enjoy the honors of office. Therefore, defeat brings to him no personal feeling of loss. Said he:

"In the face of the enemy rejoicing in its victory, let the roll be called for the engagement, and urge all the friends of bimetalism to renew their allegiance to the cause. If we are right as I believe we are, we shall yet triumph. Until convinced of his error, let each advocate of bimetalism continue to work. Let all of the silver clubs retain their organizations, hold regular meetings and circulate literature. Our opponents have succeeded in this campaign, and we must now put their theories to a test. Instead of talking mysteriously about 'sound money,' and 'an honest dollar,' they must now elaborate and defend their financial system. Every step taken by them should be publicly considered by the silver clubs."

Bryan was supported by tens of thousands of Republicans, who left their party when that party abandoned silver and sold out to the gold trust. Bryan recognizes their service in the campaign and accords them their full meed of praise. In the States where the silver question was most discussed and best understood, Bryan's vote was largest, proving that all that is necessary to secure bimetalism is to educate the people.

AN IRRESISTIBLE APPEAL.

Ex-Governor Colcord has sent the following message to Mr. McKinley, President elect:

The few Republicans in Nevada extend sincere thanks and hearty congratulations to our gallant leader and the Republicans of the great East for having saved us from dishonor, reputation and the perils of heresies of Populism.

Isn't that an irresistible appeal for a stall at the public crib? Think of it. It was made by a man who was elected on a free coinage platform, and who six months ago in a Republican State Convention at Virginia City insisted on declaring for free coinage at the rate of 16 to 1. Are such men deserving the respect or confidence of their fellow citizens? One day they declare for the interests of the State and nation and the next, for the mere chance of getting some federal pay they proclaim themselves pledge breakers who have not the slightest regard for principle and who would betray the people for a feed at the public crib. There are a few Republicans in the State who always advocated the single gold standard and to them should be allotted the federal offices if Mr. Hanna has any regard for principle.

AN EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS.

It is the prevailing opinion at Washington that Congress will be convened in extra session immediately after the inauguration of President McKinley. Mr. McKinley has not expressed a word on the subject, but Mark Hanna, who is a "bigger" man than McKinley, is reported upon good authority as having said so. Senator Quay who was very close to Mr. Hanna during the campaign and who is said to speak by the card, says there will be an extra session and that we will have a new tariff bill within a few months after McKinley's inauguration.

It is to be hoped that these reports are well founded. If a change in tariff schedules is going to make times better let us have it as soon as possible. We want to see "that wave of prosperity" sweep over the country and submerge the depression at the earliest moment. If 10 per cent difference in tariff schedules is causing all the trouble remove that difference immediately.

Now that the election is over and the results, even in the case of county officials, are about settled, the people will again give their attention to general business affairs, and while no great boom will follow a better condition will result. It is hoped that the various interests of Nevada will feel the promised benefits of our Republican friends in the case of McKinley's election, and every man, woman and child in Nevada will be prompt in giving him due credit, but there are doubts and fears as to the outcome and the people of a State which has suffered from unjust legislation cannot be convinced in a day or two that the success of those opposed to them is an advantage, but time will tell and the promised prosperity will be looked for anxiously and with unbounded enthusiasm.

South Dakota.

YANKTON, S. D., November 7.—With incomplete returns from Hamblin and McPherson counties and three unorganized counties on the Sioux Reservation, Bryan has a plurality in South Dakota of 45. Hamblin and McPherson counties will give McKinley a plurality. Reservation counties are expected to go for Bryan. It will take an official canvass to designate the electoral vote.

MRS. CASTLE'S CASE.

Great Influence Being Used to Secure Her Release.

LONDON, November 7.—The Westminster Gazette and other afternoon papers of this city urge the release on medical grounds of Mrs. Walter Castle of San Francisco, sentenced yesterday to three months' imprisonment. The Globe says it strongly believes in the mania defense and declares the sentence constitutes the most terrible violation of common justice, "though it is certain the judge only desired to do what was just."

The St. James Gazette, while agreeing that it is a case of clemency, in view of the prisoner's health, says: "If Mrs. Castle is released, it ought to be clearly understood that the evidence of kleptomania came to nothing. If her counsel relied on that defense they would have advised her to plead guilty. Robberies were frequent and artful."

The Home Office has not yet replied to the letter from Ambassador Bayard urging clemency for Mrs. Castle, on the ground of her physical condition. It is understood, however, that the letter was marked unofficial, and not as being from the United States Ambassador. Bayard wrote to the Home Secretary, Sir Matthew White Ridley, again to-day. Mr. Castle wrote Bayard, thanking the United States Embassy for his past efforts and urging the Ambassador to take every step possible to secure the release of Mrs. Castle. The Home office declines to give any information on the subject to the press.

Bryan to Bimetallists.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 7.—Bryan gave out to-day the following telegram addressed to Eastern bimetallists:

"In the hour of defeat I send you greeting. No words of praise can sufficiently commend you. When I remember that the Eastern States sent gold delegates to both conventions and that nearly all the Eastern papers were against bimetalism, your fight appears remarkably creditable. You have shown yourselves heroes, and events will vindicate the position you have taken."

Bryan is receiving numerous telegrams and letters in response to his address, calling upon the advocates of silver to continue their efforts, assuring him of co-operation. He has set the 24th instant for the reception to be tendered him by the people of Denver.

The War in Cuba.

HAVANA, Nov. 7.—General Castellanos with reinforcements of 8,000 troops from the Province of Santiago de Cuba, left this headquarters a few days ago and advanced in the direction of Casaca and Guaimara, on the borders of the Province of Puerto Principe, which have been besieged a long time by insurgents. Casaca and Guaimara were both reported to have fallen, but the former was said to have been relieved a month ago by General Castellanos. According to the latest advices from Puerto Principe, the General in command of that place has moved with a strong force to the relief of Guaimara. General Castellanos, later reports say, has been engaged with the insurgents under Gomez and Calixto Garcia, and broken their formation.

Carnegie to Build.

PITTSBURGH, November 7.—The Carnegie Steel Company at a meeting to-day resolved to proceed with the building of two additional blast furnaces. The total expenditures authorized will exceed $1,200,000. It was also decided to push to completion the new railroad to the lakes, requiring an expenditure of $3,500,000.

Carnegie also accepted bids to-day for the erection of a new library at Homestead at a cost of $250,000. He says he was so certain the country is entering upon a period of prosperity that he was willing to spend his surplus.

Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, November 7.—With official returns from 106 of the 119 counties and unofficial returns from the remainder, McKinley now leads Bryan in Kentucky by 452 votes. Official returns of the thirteen counties are not expected to materially alter the total given.

A BLIND TRAVELER.

He Finds His Way Alone Along the Roads of California.

Gilbert Watkins is the name of a blind man who lives on Brush street, near Taylor. Although he is so blind he cannot tell day from night, even though he looks directly at the sun, it does not interfere with his ability to travel. In fact, Watkins does more traveling than most other people except drummers. And, furthermore, he does the most of it without any one to guide him.

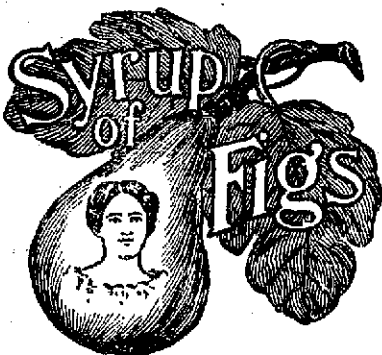

Watkins, when he is in the city, can be seen standing on the corners of some of the down town streets, where he sells notions and other small articles in order to gain a livelihood. But he does not stay long at a time, because he likes to visit different places and meet different people. He always attends the different celebrations and fetes, where he says he is sure to enjoy himself.

When Watkins wants to go any place the first time, he gets some one to guide him, if possible, but after that he can go alone at any time he wishes. He has been over nearly all of the roads in California, and only a few months ago he walked from this city to Los Angeles by himself. He says he is always well treated and finds people only too willing to tell him what is going on.

According to Watkins' story, he is able to do these remarkable things solely by his memory and says that he can be taken anywhere and made to turn as many corners as desired, and that he can find his way back without assistance. In this respect he seems to have the same faculty a cat is said to have and crocodiles in the same way.

When the blind man desires to go to a certain place he has never been taken before, he is led to it, and as he goes along he takes mental note of all the objects he passes. Here is a rough crossing, here some asphaltum pavement, here a dirt road with some stones on it, here some water, etc. When he wants to return, he takes them in reverse order and has no trouble.

"The reason I can do this," he says, "is because I don't see a lot of things that distract me. You could do the same thing easily enough. Maybe in a mile I would only have to remember a few objects. It is just the same as if a man who could see was taken through a dark alley, but every once in awhile was given a glimpse of his surroundings by a light being turned on. He could remember what he saw without any trouble, but if he saw a thousand other things he could not. I know just how many steps it is from the corner to where I live and can walk to the place without even using my cane. Of course I am helped a great deal by the people I pass, because they know I am blind and always make room for me."

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists. If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be recommended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, the one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

Eggers, 139 Florida St. San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. ### THE BELMONT VS. N. S. U.

A Spirited Football Game and a Victory for California.

The Belmont College of California football team arrived on yesterday morning's train and were received by a large number of the students of the State University. The party was immediately escorted to the University and were made at home in Lincoln Hall. The morning hours were pleasantly spent by the visitors in taking in the sights about town and the various buildings at the University.

In the afternoon the game was called and was witnessed by a large audience. The Californians were up in their work and it was a foregone conclusion that the game was theirs from the start. In reality the game was arranged to give the Nevada boys experience with a thoroughly trained team that they might receive the benefit of a game played in a scientific manner.

The Belmonts made the first play and soon scored a touchdown and the game followed throughout the game. The Belmonts won by a score of 70 to 0. Everybody was in good humor and the Belmont boys were heartily cheered and the Nevada boys felt that the day while against them had been a profitable one.

After the game the visitors were again taken in hand by the Nevada boys and entertained. They left for home this morning.

A Famous Author's Play to be Produced Here.

There are several writers of fiction to-day who have gained enduring and permanent fame by their delightful stories of life in the mountains and mines. Personal interest seems to attach to these romances. Chief among these writers may be mentioned Mr. Bret Harte, whose "M'liss" made the late Annie Pixley famous. Other notable successes include "The Golden Giant," "My Pardner," and other plays which, by the deft hands of the playwright, have won great success on the theatrical stage. The books and plays have charmed the people of the East by the flavor of romance woven around them, and the people of the West by their familiarity with the scenes depicted and the characters represented.

Among the most notable of the late successes is Scott Marble's charming comedy drama founded on Bret Harte's dainty story of blivary entitled "Tennessee's Pardner." The latter play which comes to us for the first time Saturday, November 14th, at McKiesick's Opera House, has, perhaps, met with greater success than any other foreign or domestic play presented in recent years. Since it was originally produced in New York two years ago, over 500 performances have been given during its famous long runs in the principal Eastern cities, and it comes to us with the majority of the members of the original company.

The play, which is in four acts, tells a powerful, interesting, dramatic story, but through it all runs a deep vein of humor. The costumes and scenery are picturesque in the extreme and "Tennessee's Pardner" will no doubt duplicate here the great success it has met with in other cities.

The advance sale is already unusually large.

The scenes are laid around Reno and Carson.

THE CALL.

"Come," said a voice to a poet as he sought an elusive rhyme. One night when the world was sleeping, in the heart of the sweet May time. "Oh, how can I come?" he answered. "Let me alone, I pray. For the verse which I now am weaving the hearts of men will sway."

"Come," said the voice to a statesman as he stood in the senate hall. And was moved on at his bidding like troops at a bugle call. "How can I come?" he answered. "My sun at its zenith stands. Before its setting my name shall be known in the lands."

"Come," said the voice to a mother with her children at her knee. Dreaming how safe and happy their life by her side should be. "Oh, I cannot come," she answered. "I pray you, let me stay. For how can I leave my darlings to wander far away?"

No other word was spoken, but the poet left his pen. The statesman's name was heard no more upon the lips of men. And the children found no mother, though they called with sobbing breath. For the voice which spoke all must obey—it was the voice of Death.

DO FISHES SUFFER PAIN?

Apparently Not, Though They Are In Many Respects Sensitive.

All fishes have nerves, and in some respects fishes are extremely sensitive. A fish that has buried itself in sand or mud so completely that only the tip of its tail fin is above the bottom will feel upon the slightest touch and instantly dart out of its sandy bed. A fish is very sensitive to movements in the water surrounding it. A shadow falling upon the water will startle a fish into flight. But sensitive as fishes are in some respects, it is probable that they do not suffer pain from injuries received.

Fishes are extremely sensitive to the nose. A fish that had in pursuit of prey run its nose against a rock might shake its head violently, perhaps in pain, but fishes sustain serious injuries from actual wounds without showing any indication of pain. In fact, the indications tend to show that they do not suffer.

A fish that has been hooked by an angler, but has escaped, perhaps carrying off a hook in its mouth, may a few minutes afterward bite again at another hook. Such instances are not infrequent. In such cases the hook would probably be concealed by the bait and the fish would not be likely to see it, but the fact that it is ready to take the bait shows that it is continuing to feed, which it would scarcely be like to do if it were suffering great pain. A shark from whose body all the viscera had been removed has continued to feed.

Sensitive as fishes are about the nose, many of them use the nose in pushing stones and gravel about in building a nest for the female to spawn in. The salmon notoriously often wears its snout down to the bone in excavating a cavity for a nest, and often it wears off its tail to a mere nub in brushing out stones and gravel. Yet such fishes frequently recover from their injuries and return to the ocean.

Timid and sensitive as fishes are in some respects, they fight one another vigorously. In such fights they may receive injuries that might be described as terrible. To these injuries they may pay so little attention that after the fight is over they go on with their feeding or with whatever occupation they had been engaged in.

Injuries which would throw a human being into a state of helplessness do not interrupt the career of fish life. The fish that is overpowered by its injuries, but apparently it does not suffer pain from them.

Fishes survive injuries of a remarkable character. The stomach of a captured codfish was found to be pierced by a spine of a scorpion which it had swallowed. The sharp, thornlike spine pierced about half an inch beyond the outer wall of the stomach into the fish's body. Apparently the codfish had suffered no inconvenience from this. The wound caused by the spine had healed around it, and the codfish was feeding and swimming generally as before.

Diphtheria Cure.

The testimony of a prominent physician:

FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind., June 17, 1895.

This certifies that I have been using V. O. in my practice. I have never found any medical preparation in 46 years of practice that is calculated to do so much good in so wide a range of diseases and leave no after bad effects.

STEALING INVENTIONS.

Few Men of Genius Reap the Benefit of Their Invention.

Just why inventive genius and gullibility should go together it is hard to say. Certain it is that inventors are the most gullest individuals in their dealings with others on business matters and fall easy victims to the spiders who lie in wait for such flies. The list of clever men who walk today while those who ride owe their luxury to the other man's genius and their own shrewdness is an interesting one. Here are a few cases picked haphazard from the chronicle of inventions that failed to benefit the inventor, or, at least, produced for him a little of what was his due.

It is not necessary to be very old to remember when hooks were first put in men's shoes in place of holes in order to save time in lacing the shoe at the top. This was the brilliant idea of an inventor to whom it should have brought a fortune. It would have done so had he been a shrewd business man. Being merely an inventor, he hadn't sense enough to keep his idea to himself until the patent office padlock had secured it against theft. In the innocence of his nature the inventor confided the idea to a friend while crossing the North river ferryboat, and the friend hardly waited for the boat to tie up in Jersey City before he crossed himself, started back to New York and even at a dead run for a patent lawyer in order to have the idea secured for his own special benefit. Another man is known today as the inventor of the lace hooks. He owns a splendid house and is wealthy. The confiding inventor got nothing.

The inventor of a patent stopper for beer bottles, something that had long been wanted by the trade, sold the invention for $10,000 to a man who recognized its money making value. The purchaser is now worth $5,000,000, all of which he made from the patent stopper. Out of the goodness of his heart he presented the original owner of the patent with $80,000, so that this man got $40,000 in all for his $5,000,000 idea. To give some notion of the value of patent rights on this bottle stopper the price came down from $1 to 6 and 7 cents a gross, and even at this enormous reduction a good profit can be made.

This last inventor was treated with princely generosity, however, in comparison with the genius who devised a pocketbook clasp in the shape of interlocking horns with balls at the end which snapped shut with a single pressure. The idea was afterward applied to gloves and became very much in favor. The inventor relinquished his prize for the magnificent reward of a kidney stew dinner and 50 cents, the latter having been advanced by the purchaser to pay the inventor's expense from Newark to New York. The man who secured the idea and patented it after treating the inventor in the royal manner mentioned made a big fortune by his shrewdness. What became of the inventor is not known.—Exchange.

Unpleasant Remedy.

A writer on lion hunting tells how Hassan, a quick witted Somali, found his way out of a very serious difficulty. He had been down in the waterless plains and was on the way home, driving some camels before him. It was a very dry year, and, although this was the rainy season, he had been unable to find any water to give his pony.

The result was that, having been ridden hard for two or three days, with little or no water to drink, the pony succumbed entirely and at last lay down about 20 miles from the wells. No amount of persuasion, or even beating, would get the creature on its legs again. Hassan was in despair. He knew that there were no vessels at the wells in which he might carry water back to the pony, and it seemed to him as if nothing could be done to save it. At last he thought of a plan. He drove the camels at top speed to the wells, gave them as much water as they could drink and then hurried them on again.

He found the pony where he had left it, growing rapidly weaker. He immediately killed the camels, cut them open and took the water from their stomachs. The pony was eager enough to drink it, and after the drink it revived sufficiently to struggle on to the wells. In a few days it had completely recovered. In telling the story Hassan always added that he could get plenty of camels, and whether that were so or not he would rather have cut the throats of 100 than sacrifice his beloved pony.

Noble Ends.

When there is a choice of roads to arrive at a certain goal, it is not always the shortest which should be chosen. The desire for money is a legitimate one, for money is the key which unlocks many opportunities. But the ways which men take to acquire it are too numerous to recount and differ with every difference of character. There are men who firmly resolve to obtain wealth by whatever means they think will accomplish their end. They will get all they can and give as little as possible for it. All such unfairness is practical robbery. The winner is the robber; the loser is the robbed. Both are injured—the one in his property, the other in his character—while the community is likewise impoverished. But directly you bring labor into the field—honest, intelligent work—some real addition is at once made to the wealth of the community and to the character, self respect and independence of the worker.—New York Ledger.

Man at the Table—Waiter, these eggs are hard as a brick. You must have boiled them more than three minutes? Waiter—Yes, sir; the boss has told us always to do more than is asked of us, and in that way the trade will be built up. You only asked to have your eggs boiled three minutes, but, to show our willingness to accommodate and to make things agreeable, we boiled them six minutes.—Boston Transcript.

It is not generally recognized that the friction between air and other gases and solids or liquids is very great. It is on account of this friction that we have such enormous waves at sea during gales of wind. The film of oil which reduces the breaking of the sea seems to act not only by its cohesion and deadening action upon the water, but by having a less amount of friction with the air. Be that as it may, however, air, steam and most gases have a great deal of friction with solids. When under pressure, this friction is increased, and if the gas is escaping through a small orifice the law of friction in regard to speed, while pressure and surface remain equal, still holds true. It is a fact known of long observation that the small valves of certain kind of steam drips cut with great rapidity if allowed a very small rise or opening. That steam cuts and cuts like a knife, especially when the pressure is high and the outlet small, is a fact tolerably well established and known to most old engineers.—Philadelphia Record.

Walter Kennedy wrote to the manager of a prominent theater in Connecticut, asking for his open time for a week in the following repertory: "Samson," "Othello," "Pythias," and "Damon and Pythias," and this was the answer: "Walter Kennedy—Dear Sir: I must say that I have never heard of but two of the actors you mention in your company. Samson was at the dime museum here not long ago, breaking fake chains, and Othello played here last winter at the opposition theater. They say he is a good actor, but I don't care about playing colored stars at my house, as I cater to the very best lady audiences, and then I don't think I would like a show with all men in it. I want shows with plenty of singing and dancing, sonnettes and comedians, with funny gags. That's the stuff for me."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Gallery Gods.
It is a common saying that the "gallery gods" are the best critics, and many people believe it to be true. It might have been years and years ago, but at present the reverse is true. The ascendancy of farce comedy, vaudeville and exaggerated melodrama has not been uplifting. The "gallery gods" of the present day know nothing of the legitimate drama. They have degenerated because theatrical offerings have not in any way served to educate them.—Albany Journal.
